

Letters

The good old days

I wish every orthodontist could read your editorial in the Summer 1990 issue, "The good old days — were they really so good?", and realize the outstanding changes that have occurred in the practice of orthodontics. I continue to tell graduates at the University of the Pacific that if I were practicing today by the standards I was taught in the 1960s I would be guilty of malpractice.

We have come a long way and the changes have been most rewarding for our patients and fellow practitioners. Thank you for continuing to give us outstanding "food for thought" and reflection.

—Arthur A. Dugoni, DDS, MSD
Dean and Professor of Orthodontics,
University of the Pacific
Immediate Past President,
American Dental Association

Golden Scroll Award goes to The Angle Orthodontist

Congratulations, your entry in the 1990 International College of Dentists Journalism Awards Competition has been selected to receive the Golden Scroll Award in Division I.

The Angle Orthodontist is a significant publication in its 59th year that has been redesigned in large format with handsome typography and fine illustration. A narrow outside column on each page accommodates figure and table legends. The article abstract and list of key words used in the article are handled well. Paper and printing are exceptionally good.

It is for this reason that the officers and Regents of the USA Section invite you to receive your award from the President of the Section, Dr. Eugene Brinker, during the morning session of the American Association of Dental Editors meeting in Boston on October 11, 1990.

—William E. Hawkins, DDS, FICD
Chairman, Awards Committee
International College of Dentists